

TRANSITION ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

Transition Assistance Program Overview

TAP OVERVIEW

Every year, approximately 200,000 men and women leave U.S. military service and return to life as civilians, a process known as the military-to-civilian transition.

The Department of Defense (DoD) Transition Assistance Program (TAP) provides information, tools and training to ensure service members and their spouses are prepared for the next step in civilian life.

The military to civilian transition occurs within a complex and dynamic network of relationships, programs, services, and benefits, which includes transition planning and assistance efforts by individual Service branches, the interagency TAP partnership, and community resources delivered through local government, private industry and nonprofit organizations.

WHAT IS TRANSITION?

Transition is a period of adjustment, which includes the planning and preparation accomplished during military service, when service members and their families explore and embark on endeavors in the civilian world upon leaving active duty.

CORE COMPONENTS OF TAP

TAP INTERAGENCY PARTNERSHIP

In addition to the military departments, TAP is the result of an interagency partnership between the Department of Defense, Department of Labor, Department of Education, Department of Veterans Affairs, Department of Homeland Security, in conjunction with the Small Business Administration and the Office of Personnel Management.
